THE COLLECTION

OF

ASSYRIAN, BABYLONIAN, EGYPTIAN, GREEK, ETRUSCAN,
ROMAN, INDIAN,
PERUVIAN AND MEXICAN ANTIQUITIES,

FORMED BY

B. HERTZ,

CORRESPONDING MEMBER OF THE ARCHÆOLOGICAL INSTITUTE AT ROME.

LONDON:

11, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET.

1851.

P R E F A C E.

THE Collection of Antiquities, described in the present Catalogue, was formed with the intention of gathering, so far as possible, the scattered monuments of ancient art, in order to illustrate the rise, progress and decline of the Fine Arts, and to obtain satisfactory corroboration of the veracity of ancient traditions respecting the religious habits, arts, and employments of bygone nations, and the achievements of illustrious men and heroes. It is universally recognised, that nothing can tend in an equal degree to give a healthy impetus to modern art, and to educate, refine, and elevate the taste of the masses, as the study of the antique. The great improvement visible of late years in every department of manufacture, wherein sense of beauty can be displayed, is doubtless attributable in a very large measure to the facility which has been awarded to the operative classes of visiting public museums, and hearing public lectures upon Art in its primitive and purest form. So palpable and so happy has the result been of initiating the people in the grandeur and beauty of the relics of antiquity, that Archæological institutions and associations are now in existence even in the provincial towns of various countries in Europe, by whom collections of antiquities are formed with such eagerness as to render it difficult for private collectors to make new acquisitions.

To select antiquities judiciously is a difficult task. Not only is much deception practised by unprincipled dealers, to baffle which requires an exercised eye and long experience, but the collector has to avoid the danger of encumbering his collection with objects that neither possess merit as works of art, nor represent any mythological or historical subject, and consequently possess no archæological value.

It is because perfectly free from all such imperfections, that the present collection deserves especial consideration ; every favourable opportunity of adding to its importance, and completing it, which has occurred within the last twenty years, has been eagerly seized by the proprietor, and the result of his endeavours has received the unqualified approbation of the most distinguished archæologists. An enumeration of the different branches of which it is composed, will give some idea of its variety, completeness, and interest.

Glyptic art is illustrated by a collection of more than Two Thousand Specimens of Assyrian, Babylonian, and Persian cylinders and seals, Egyptian and Etruscan scarabæ, Greek and Roman cameos, intaglios, figures, busts, &c. There are also specimens of the cinque-cento, and from that period down to our own inclusive.

These gems illustrate mythology, history, scenes of domestic life, sacred rites, gymnastic exercises, race-courses, warriors, weapons, ships, philosophers, artists, histrions, animals, &c. in the selection of which great regard has been paid to fine art, to the quality of the precious material of which they are composed, and finally to the interest of the subjects they represent.

This collection likewise contains a number of very fine specimens of Egyptian, Etruscan, Greek and Roman plastic art in marble and bronze.

Without entering into details, it may be allowed to call particular attention amongst the marbles to the unique figure of the Athlete in nero-antico, and among the bronzes to No. 19, a Venus found in Asia Minor, one of the finest specimens of the most flourishing period of Greek art.

The collection of Etruscan and Greek Vases, Greek and Roman Glasses and Terra Cottas, likewise contains very choice and interesting specimens. Amongst the vases there are several with inscriptions.

Some Fresco Paintings, which are rarely met with in private collections, are to be found in this collection.

A part of Indian Mythology is illustrated by some very interesting bronze statuettes.

Peruvian Pottery and Mexican Antiquities terminate the Catalogue of this collection.

Some errors of description and omission have occurred in the Catalogue, which have been rectified as errata.

ASSYRIAN, BABYLONIAN, AND PERSIAN CYLINDERS.

These objects which have acquired a new interest from the discoveries in the reading of the arrowheaded character, are the Seals of the ancient Aramæan people, they were fixed on a swivel ring, and run round the edges of documents, in order to prevent illegal enlargement.

- 1 DIVINITY seated on a chair ; at his foot a man seated holding a crook. Hematite ; $1\frac{1}{8}$ in. h.
- 2 The God of Fire holding flame in one hand and a mace in the other, and trampling on a small figure facing another deity ; behind them a small figure : behind, a sphinx, winged lion, twisted band in an oval, part of a winged man and hawk, small figure and gazelle-headed deity. Hematite ; 1 in. h.
- 3 A Deity seated on a throne, probably Bel or Nebo, holding in one hand the Egyptian emblem of life : before, a man holding a gazelle by the leg : above, the winged disk emblem of the god Assarac or Nisroch : behind, a gazelle and winged bull-headed deity carrying between them a gazelle, and two men carrying two gazelles. Before them a flying vulture in Egyptian style. Hematite ; 1 in. h.
- 4 A Deity seated on a throne, before him fire ; another standing, and a third accompanied by a gazelle : behind, 3 l. of Babylonian cursive cuneiform, probably the name and genealogy of the possessor, and a short invocation to the deity. Hematite ; $\frac{9}{16}$ in. l.
- 5 A Deity seated on a throne ; five others standing, one holds a kid ; rubbed. Hematite ; $\frac{7}{8}$ in. l.
- 6 Three figures and the moon. Hematite ; $\frac{3}{4}$ in. l.
- 7 Two male figures, standing, holding swords, one on each side of an altar, above a spread eagle : behind, one female deity holding an ear of corn, and two Egyptian papyrus sceptres, and a symbol of life : behind the altar, Phenix (rech) guilloche ornament and gazelle. Hematite ; $\frac{1}{8}$ in. l.
- 8 Figure standing and adoring a god holding a sceptre, between them a star : behind, 3 l. of Babylonian cuneiform. Hematite ; 1 in. l.
- 9 Seated deity holding a staff, terminating in a star, standing figure holding a goat, between them a vase ; two figures standing, holding a star-headed staff. Porcelain jasper ; $1\frac{1}{4}$ in. l.
- 10 A man adoring the Sun and Moon on their astronomical houses. Onyx, $1\frac{3}{8}$ in. l.
- 11 A man, standing, adoring a deity who stands holding a sword ; between them two men holding vases and baskets, and 3 lines of cursive Babylonian cuneiform : the name of the possessor, and address to the deity. A remarkably beautiful specimen. Sardonyx ; $1\frac{7}{8}$ in. l.

- 12 Persian deity, perhaps Auramasda, standing and seizing a griffin by the forelock : above, the Ferouher or winged globe. The original bronze pin remaining in it. Chalcedony ; 1 in. l.

- 1 Circular encaustic painting from Herculaneum, from the celebrated collection of Dr. Mead, described in the Catalogue of his sale, February, 1755, page 242:—"Glaucus, phocam, quam capistro tenet, per mare ducens; inferiore corporis parte in piscem desinente, prout Ovidius describit, Met. XIII., 912.
- "Constitit hic; et tuta loco, monstrumne deusne
Ille sit ignorans, admiraturque colorem,
Cæsariemque humeros subjectaque terga tergentem,
Ultimaque exipiat quod tortilis inguina piscis."
- 10 in. dr.
- 2 Fresco painting from Pompeii, representing Venus and Adonis. 11 in. by 9 in.
- 3 Ditto, ditto, Cupid and Psyche. $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. square.
- These two paintings were formerly in the possession of H. R. H. the late Duke of Sussex.
- 4 Encaustic painting from Herculaneum, representing a nymph seated, holding a wreath, before her ivy-leaves. 10 in. h., 8 in. w.

- 43 VINE LEAF, on semi-opaque blue glass; lapis lazuli colour; incrustation of green enamel, in gold fillet. A real work of art; oval form. Set as a gold ring. $\frac{5}{8}$ in. h., $\frac{3}{8}$ in. w.
- 44 LIZARD, on semi-opaque blue glass; lapis lazuli colour; incrustation of green enamel in gold fillet. Oval form. Set as a gold ring. $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h., $\frac{3}{8}$ in. w.
- 45 FISH, of various colours, on white ground. $5\frac{1}{8}$ in. h., $9\frac{1}{8}$ in. w.
- 46 Ditto. ditto. ditto. 5 in. h., $7\frac{1}{4}$ in. w.
- 47 Twenty-six pieces of Glass, with incrustations, of a variety of colours.

UNCOLOURED GLASS.—ROMAN.

- 48 CINERARY URN, with cover, of the most beautiful iridescent colours, and uninjured; found in the neighbourhood of CARTHAGE. Contains the incombustible linen in which the body was wrapped previously to its being burned. 13 in. h., 31 in. circ.
- 49 CINERARY URN, with cover; found in the same tomb as the foregoing lot, (uninjured.) Contains calcined human bones, and those of an animal, supposed to be of a warrior and his horse. $11\frac{1}{2}$ in. h., 26 in. circ.
- 50 CINERARY URN, four-handled. $10\frac{1}{2}$ in. h., 29 in. circ.
- 51 Ditto. ditto. $10\frac{1}{8}$ in. h., 27 in. circ.
- 52 Ditto, two-handled, with cover; in the interior, figures of boys are painted in gold; contains bones. From Horace Walpole's Collection; particularly described in Dr. Conyers Middleton's Antiquities. 9 in. h., $22\frac{1}{2}$ in. circ.
- 53 CUP, circular, ribbed, and elegantly shaped. 5 in. h., $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. dr.
- 54 BOTTLE, with a short handle on the neck. Found in the same tomb with lots 48 and 49. Contains the dregs of wine. The glass is extremely thin, and cracked. 7 in. h.
- 55 BOTTLE, (square); with a short handle on the neck. $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 56 VASE, with one handle; oviform body. Very elegant shape. 7 in. h.
- 57 Ditto, with two handles; globular form. $7\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 58 Ditto, with one handle, globular form. 3 in. h.
- 59 BOTTLE, globular form, with long neck; at the lower part of the bottle there is a spout. 5 in. h.
- 60 BOTTLE, globular form, with long neck. $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 61 Ditto, ditto, ditto. 4 in. h.
- 62 Ditto, ditto, ditto. $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 63 Ditto, ditto, ditto, silvery iridescent colour. $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 64 Ditto, ditto, ditto, ditto. $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 65 Ditto, ditto, ditto, ditto. $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 66 Ditto, ditto, ditto, ditto. $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 67 Ditto, ditto, ditto, ditto. $2\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 68 Ditto, ditto, ditto, ditto. $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 69 Ditto, ditto, ditto, ditto. $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.

70	BOTTLE, globular with long neck.	2 in. h.
71	Ditto, globoid body with long neck, silvery iridescent colour.	2 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
72	Ditto, ditto, ditto, ditto.	2 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
73	Ditto, ditto, ditto, ditto.	2 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
74	Ditto, ditto, ditto, blueish iridescent colour.	1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
75	Ditto, ditto, ditto, much oxydized.	2 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
76	Ditto, square, beautiful iridescent.	2 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
77	Ditto, fluted, iridescent.	3 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
78	PHIAL, (called lachrymatory), beautiful iridescent colours, bottom and neck fragmented.	7 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
79	Ditto, (called lachrymatory).	5 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
80	Ditto.	3 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
81	Ditto.	3 $\frac{5}{8}$ in. h.
82	Ditto, iridescent.	2 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
83	Ditto, two.	each 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
84	Ditto, iridescent, with antique gold mounting on the neck. This is a very rare specimen, and shews that glass must have been in great consideration, being mounted with such precious metal.	1 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
85	Ditto, oviform, with long tapering tube at the bottom, and long neck.	6 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
86	CUP, circular, beautiful iridescent.	3 in. h., 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. dr.
87	Ditto, ditto, ditto.	2 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h., 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. dr.
88	Ditto, ditto.	1 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h., 2 $\frac{5}{8}$ in. dr.
89	GOBLET, drinking cup, conical form.	5 in. h.
90	Ditto, ditto, ditto, engraved with Gothic ornaments.	3 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. h.
91	PLATE, circular.	1 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. h., 6 $\frac{7}{8}$ in. dr.
92	Ditto, very iridescent.	1 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h., 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. dr.
93	FRAGMENTS, two, one neck of a bottle ; the other, the foot of a cup, beautifully iridescent.
94	CUP, circular, knotted surface, iridescent.	1 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. h., 1 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. dr.
95	Ditto, beautifully iridescent.	$\frac{1}{2}$ in. h., 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. dr.
96	Ditto, ditto.	$\frac{1}{4}$ in. h., 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. dr.
97	Ditto, flat, opal-like colours.	1 $\frac{5}{8}$ in. dr.
98	Ditto, ditto, greenish iridescent colours.
99	HOUR-GLASS, Roman, contains sand, and has four marked divisions of the hour ; found with the fragments of a bronze capsula, near Mayence, 1846. This specimen is unique.	3 in. h.

WORKS OF GREEK, ETRUSCAN, AND ROMAN ARTISTS,

IN SILVER AND BRONZE.

STATUES OF DIVINITIES.

- 1 JUPITER. . . . Bust of Jupiter Serapis. Noble and spirited. 3 in. h.
- 2 Jupiter, standing erect, crowned with laurels; the chiton is suspended from his left shoulder. The right arm wanting. 3½ in. h.
- 3 Jupiter, crowned with laurel; the arms and legs fragmented. Very spirited. 2 in. h.
- 4 CERES. . . . A very small statuette. Ceres, seated on a throne, holding the patera in her right hand, and the horn of plenty in her left. ¾ in. h.
- 5 MINERVA. . . . A standing Minerva, similar to the one in the Æginetic group; she is armed with the ægis and circular shield; a lance, now wanting, formerly reposed in her raised hand; on her head the goddess wears a stephane-like helmet, with ear-flaps. The representation is dignified throughout. (Vide Tab. III. No. 1.) 4½ in. h.
- 6 Minerva, with a helmet upon her head, the cone of which is formed by a sphinx. She wears the ægis, and advances to the combat, clad in flowing garments; the lance, which she held in her left hand, is wanting, as also the object she carried in her stretched-forth right hand. Very pleasing, and carefully executed. It vividly reminds of similar representations of this goddess, in marble, on engraved stones, and on coins. The patina is remarkably beautiful. 5 in. h.
- 7 A standing Minerva, clad in a richly-draped peplos; on her head is the anopis; in her left hand she holds her buckler to the ground; in her right, her lance. (Vid. Tab. III. No. 2.) 4¾ in. h.
- 8 Minerva, in an attitude of repose; a helmet, with a flowing plume, covers her head, the ægis her breast; her raised left hand leans upon the lance, while her right formerly held her buckler to the ground. The right under arm is broken off. 5½ in. h.
- 9 Minerva, seated, with the ægis upon her breast, and the patera in her right hand; in her left, she held the lance, which is wanting. Spirited, and rare, on account of the attitude, which seldom occurs in bronzes. 2¾ in. h.

- 10 MINERVA. . . . Head of Minerva, with silver eyes, belonging to a statue, and remarkable for a widely-spread plume of the helmet, which shades the face. Composition and execution very beautiful. $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 11 Bust of Minerva; she wears a helmet, without the plume. Of the fine Greek type, with silver eyes, and a beautiful patina. $1\frac{7}{8}$ in. h.
- 12 An owl. $1\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 13 An owl, sitting on the trunk of a tree. $1\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 14 MARS. . . . Statue of young Mars; he wears a helmet; his lifted right hand reposed on the lance, which is now wanting; and his left hand holds the parazonium. This figure, which, in point of composition and execution, may rank with the finest monuments, deserves attentive consideration, even in its details. The slender legs, curved in beautiful lines, form a support, upon which the upper body rests with dignified gracefulness. The muscles of the body are sharply defined, yet delicately rounded by that softness of form peculiar to statues of Mars. Finally, the arms, and the weapons that rest in them, complete the expression of the whole, the effect of which is the greater, the more clearly we perceive the artist's intention to depict the God of War in all the grandeur of his divinity. The eyes were formerly of silver. The patina is very beautiful. (Vide Tab. V.) $9\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 15 VENUS. . . . Venus Anadyomene, with a drooping cliton, and her head adorned by a stephane, adjusting her humid hair with both hands. Exceedingly pleasing. Fine patina. $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 16 Venus Anadyomene grasping her humid hair with both hands. The pupils of the eyes, and the bracelets which adorn the upper arms, are silver. $4\frac{7}{8}$ in. h.
- 17 A similar representation, but without ornament, and less skilfully executed. $4\frac{7}{8}$ in. h.
- 18 Venus, naked, her head adorned with the stephane, adjusting her hair with her left hand. Very pleasing. The feet are unfortunately mutilated. $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 19 Venus, standing, naked, holding a broad, twisted wreath in her hand. One of the finest productions of Greek art, alike great in conception and execution. The goddess of beauty is here invested with the utmost sweetness and guilelessness, devoid of the coquetry which characterizes the naked statues of Venus of later periods. Even the minutest details are executed with a grace and beauty, only ascribable to the flourishing period of Greek art. The expression of the countenance is pre-eminently dignified, and the hair is most gracefully arranged; the figure is in admirable preservation, and has a green patina. Found near Mogla in Asia Minor. (Vid. Tab. II.) $13\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 20 Venus Euploëa, in a sitting posture, with her garment drooping. She holds her peplum, which is inflated by the wind, over her head. Spirited. $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 21 Venus, adorned with a necklace and bracelets, holding her drooping garment in her left hand. Very pretty. $2\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 22 Venus, naked, regarding herself in a mirror, which she holds in her right hand, while with her left she strives modestly to conceal her charms. The figure is throughout well-proportioned. $4\frac{3}{8}$ in. h.

- 23 VENUS. . . . A naked Venus, her head adorned by a stephane, with flowing ribbons, holding the apple in her left hand. The conception and execution of this figure are elegant throughout. 5½ in. h.
- 24 Venus, naked, with her left hand, she re-adjusts a disordered lock of hair. The attitude of the goddess is peculiarly graceful and pleasing. The pupils of the eyes, which were of silver, are unfortunately wanting. Fine patina. 5½ in. h.
- 25 A standing Venus, naked, her locks adorned with the stephane. In her right hand the goddess seems to have held the apple, while with her left, she modestly conceals her charms. The figure, throughout of the highest order, is perfectly proportioned. 5½ in. h.
- 26 Venus, crowned with a diadem; in her stretched-forth right hand she holds the apple, while with the other, she modestly gathers round her the peplos, which has fallen. The composition and treatment are equally happy. 6¼ in. h.
- 27 A silver statuette of Venus. The goddess, who is naked, seems to have held an apple, or a mirror, in her right hand, while with the other she modestly conceals her charms from the prying gaze. The neck and left arm are adorned with rings of twisted gold wire, and from the necklace is suspended an oriental pearl. 6½ in. h.
- 28 CUPID. . . . A standing Cupid, with a lyre on his left arm, which he rests upon a pillar; in his right hand he holds the plectrum. This statuette probably served to ornament some vessel. 4½ in. h.
- 29 Cupid, the wings and extremities are wanting; a garment is thrown over the shoulder. Peculiarly fine and spirited. 1¾ in. h.
- 30 Cupid, with the horn of plenty in his right hand. Extremely pleasing and elegant. 2¼ in. h.
- 31 Cupid holding a burning torch in his uplifted right hand—perhaps to be regarded as the light—dispensing Phosphorus. Very pleasing, and particularly well executed. 3¼ in. h.
- 32 Bust of a child, perhaps Cupid. The features are invested with a peculiar charm; the treatment of the hair is extremely artistic. 2¾ in. h.
- 33 APOLLO. . . . Apollo, naked, with the quiver upon his shoulder; he probably held the bow in his right hand. The composition and treatment of this figure are equally beautiful. Very fine patina. 4¾ in. h.
- 33* Apollo, his hair peculiarly arranged in the Etruscan style, in an advancing position, his right arm uplifted; very old style. Green patina. 6½ in. h.
- 34 Apollo, his head encircled by a band, without any of his attributes. The artistic conception equals the dignity of the subject. 7⅜ in. h.
- 35 Apollo holding the patera in his right hand. Very elegant. 2¼ in. h.
- 36 Head of Apollo, adorned with a rich growth of hair, of the best period of art. 6¼ in. h.
- 37 A youthful standing figure, resembling Apollo; the head crowned with laurels. 4 in. h.

- 38 DIANA. . . . Diana, advancing with hurried step, clad in short hunting garments, carrying a torch (?) in her left hand. This figure, the hands and feet of which are now fragmented, is undoubtedly of the best period of Grecian art. $4\frac{7}{8}$ in. h.
- 39 LUNA. . . . Bust of Luna, with the crescent on her brow. Fine.
- 40 HECATE. . . . Hecate Triformis; the crescent floats above the head of the one figure, but the attributes upon the other heads are wanting; the daggers and torches in the six snake-like interlaced arms of the goddess are also broken off. $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 41 MERCURY. . . . Mercury, carrying a feather upon his head between his wings, which are half concealed by a wreath; he wears the chlamys across his shoulder and upper arm, holds the purse in his right hand, and the winged caduceus in his left. The whole figure is distinguished by its elegance. $5\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 42 Mercury, with a winged hat, and wings to his feet, holds the purse in his right hand, while with the left, he swings the winged caduceus over his head. To judge from his attitude, the god appears to be announcing some intelligence. $5\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 43 Mercury, with the winged petasus upon his head, and his feet provided with wings, he appears to have held the purse in his right hand, and the caduceus in his left. The chlamys hangs most picturesquely across his left shoulder; the whole conception and treatment is dignified. 7 in. h.
- 44 Statue of Mercury, with a laurel-wreath upon his head, and the chlamys across his shoulders; in his left hand he holds the lower portion of the broken caduceus, while the right hand probably carried the purse. The feet are winged. The features have conspicuously the character of a portrait. $4\frac{5}{8}$ in. h.
- 45 Mercury, holding the purse in his right hand, and the caduceus in his left. A highly graceful figure. $5\frac{3}{8}$ in. h.
- 46 A standing Mercury, his head covered with the winged hat, holding the caduceus in his right hand, the purse in his left. $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 47 A standing Mercury, his head covered with the winged hat, the chlamys upon his shoulder. $2\frac{7}{8}$ in. h.
- 48 Mercury, with winged feet and the winged hat, carrying the chlamys across his left shoulder, the purse in his right hand, and the caduceus in the other. The conception and execution pleasing. Fine green patina. 4 in. h.
- 49 A standing Mercury, his head covered with the winged hat, the chlamys attached across the left shoulder by a fibula. The right hand is broken off. This figure of peculiarly pleasing conception and execution, is covered with a very fine patina. $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 50 Mercury, covered with the unwinged petasus, his left arm enveloped in the chlamys attached to his left shoulder, standing upon the original antique pedestal. Spirited. $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 51 A silver statuette of Mercury; the feet are winged, the chlamys is picturesquely thrown over the shoulders and arms; in his right hand he holds a purse, and in his left some coins. This representation of Mercury, with money in - his hand, is perhaps unique. The figure is of masterly composition and execution, and of Etruscan origin. (Vid. Tab. IV. No. 3.) 4 in. h.

- 52 MERCURY. . . Mercury, with the winged hat, the chlamys thrown over his left shoulder, holding the purse in his right hand, and the caduceus in his left. Exceedingly spirited and elegant; the patina very fine. 3½ in. h.
- 53 Mercury carrying a crescent upon his petasus, between his wings; his feet are winged; in his right hand he holds the purse, while on his left arm rests Abundantia's horn of plenty, whence, from amidst flowers and fruits, the caduceus is seen to issue. Apart from the assemblage of Pantheistical attributes, the figure in itself is peculiarly pleasing and finely patined. (Vid. Tab. IV. No. 2.) 2¾ in. h.
- 54 A sitting Mercury, the winged hat upon his head, the chlamys upon his left shoulder, holding the purse in his right hand, and the caduceus in his left. 2¼ in. h.
- 55 A statue in the character of Mercury, apparently a portrait. The chlamys is thrown over the left arm, he has the caduceus and purse, and the feet are sandaled. The posture, drapery and hair are finely treated: the workmanship neat. A splendid and particularly well preserved patina. 12¾ in. h.
- 56 A sitting Mercury, with the chlamys over his shoulder and arm, and shoes on his feet, holding the purse in his right hand; in the other he held the caduceus, which is lost. The eyes are of gold. 4¼ in. h.
- 57 BACCHUS. . . Bacchus crowned with vine leaves, holding a bunch of grapes in his lifted right hand, while his left rests upon a staff, around which vine-branches, leaves, and grapes are entwined. Pleasing, and throughout artistic. 8 in. h.
- 58 Young Bacchus, with richly flowing locks, and the chlamys thrown upon his shoulders, holding a bunch of grapes in his right hand, while he stretches forth the other. Composition and treatment artistic; a fine patina. 4 in. h.
- 59 Young Bacchus holding a bunch of grapes; the grapes are of silver. Very spirited and pleasing. 1¼ in. h.
- 60 A sitting Bacchus; Etruscan workmanship. 2½ in. h.
- 61 Bacchanalian group; a very spirited composition. The drunken Bacchus is leaning upon the shoulders of a Satyr and of Pan. 2⅞ in. h.
- 62 SILENUS. . . Silenus, with a garment around his lower body. The whole conception is so perfect, that it must attract the notice of every judge of art. Silenus is represented with all the characteristics proper to the drunken companion of Bacchus. His corpulent upper body is supported by thick-set legs, and the eye, which peeps forth from the full face, glances complacently upon the ample belly. It is clearly visible what effort the attitude of the raised left arm costs the old man. 3¼ in. h.
- 63 A similar representation; the god's right hand is placed upon his side, while his left seems to have held the thyrsus. Characteristic, but not so full of genius as the former statuette. 5½ in. h.

- 64 SILENUS. . . . A grotesque Silenus; the extremities are wanting: he is holding a vine-branch with grapes and leaves over his left shoulder. This statuette, found in the village of Estoublon, Départ. des Basses Alpes, had undoubtedly served to ornament a door-bolt, whose tongue was moveable by means of a groove behind the figure. The attitude is highly characteristic, and happily conceived. 5 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 65 DITHYRAMBUS. A circular bronze medallion, perhaps the cover of a box, richly inlaid with silver. Within a rich decoration of leaves, that runs along the edge of the round cover, is the young drunken Satyr with the thyrsus, riding upon an ass, from whose neck is suspended a bell; on his left shoulder he bears a lyre, upon which he is playing. The composition and treatment are most masterly. The ass stands patiently with its head bowed to the ground, trying to discover food, while its rider, well acquainted with the animal's meekness, sits upon it, his intoxicated body somewhat inclined backwards, and grasps the strings of the lyre; the poor brute listens with an air of droll attention, indicated by the pricked-up ear. Found at Pompeii. 3 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. dr.
- 66 A bas-relief on silver. Pan endeavouring by force to become possessed of his beloved Syrinx, while she, terrified, drops her pitcher, and repelling her impetuous lover, seeks to reach the reedy shore. Exceedingly beautiful, and perhaps the most dignified and spirited treatment of this subject, although it frequently occurs in the works of antiquity. Found at Pompeii. 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h., 3 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. w.
- 67 A young Faun, clad with the nebris, and holding the pedum in his left hand, blowing upon the syrinx. The right foot is broken off. 4 $\frac{7}{8}$ in. h.
- 68 SATYR. . . . A bearded, recumbent Satyr, with feet of an ox: in the severe old Etruscan style. A very fine, turquoise-like, smooth patina. 1 $\frac{5}{8}$ in. h.
- 69 A similar representation. Not so well preserved. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 70 A youthful Hermes, probably used as a bolt-cover. 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 71 A Hermes, with the phallus. 4 in. h.
- 72 DIOSCURI. . . . One of the Dioscures, his head covered with the pileus, standing by his horse, his right arm flung around the animal's neck. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 73 HEBE. . . . Hebe, in a pleasing attitude, holding the nectar-can in her left hand, and in her raised right one, the patera. The head of the goddess is covered with a reversed calix, out of which the bees are gathering nectar. This is a not less original, than graceful representation. A similar statuette is in the Museum of the Hague. 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 74 HARPOCRATES.—A winged Harpocrates, with the bulla round his neck, standing upon an antique pedestal, his left hand holding the horn of plenty, which rests upon the bough of a tree. Pleasing. 6 in. h. (inclusive of the pedestal.)
- 75 Harpocrates, winged, the quiver on his back, and the bulla round his neck, holding the horn of plenty in his left hand, against a pillar. Very fine. A beautiful patina. 2 in. h.

- 76 HARPOCRATES.—Harpoerates, with the quiver on his back, and the horn of plenty on his arm. Elegant. 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 77 Harpoerates, holding the horn of plenty on his left arm. The feet are wanting. 2 $\frac{1}{8}$ in. h.
- 78 Harpoerates, with the bulla round his neck. The left arm with the horn of plenty; both legs are wanting. Very elegant and expressive. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 79 A very elegant statuette of Harpoerates, but without the bulla. 1 $\frac{1}{8}$ in. h.
- 80 VICTORIA. . . Victoria, marching onwards; both arms are wanting. 2 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. h.
- 81 FORTUNA. . . Fortuna, clad in amply-flowing garments, with the helm in her right hand, and the cornucopia with fruits on her left arm. Her head is adorned with the plumes often given to Isis. Very lovely and pleasing, and of delicate workmanship. (Vide Tab. IV. No. 4.) 5 $\frac{1}{8}$ in. h.
- 82 VERTUMNUS. . Vertumnus, in a long priestly garment, carrying fruits and flowers. The dress and workmanship indicate this figure to be of Etruscan origin. A fine greenish-blue patina. 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 83 FLORA. . . A youthful female statue, clad in a chiton poderes, and ampechonium; her rich hair is adorned with what seems to be a wreath of flowers; in her right hand she holds an apple; the left arm is theatrically stretched upwards. 5 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. h.
- 84 HERCULES. . . Statue of young Heracles, with the lion's skin upon his shoulder, holding the club in his left hand. Spirited and dignified. 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 85 Statue of a bearded Heracles, with the lion's skin upon his left arm, and his right one resting on the club. Admirable, and of the purest Greek character. 10 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 86 A standing Heracles, with a short club in his right hand, his head and shoulders covered with the lion's skin. A most happy conception and treatment. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 87 A standing Heracles, holding his right hand before his lower body, and with the other sustaining the club upon his shoulders. The feet are wanting. 2 in. h.
- 88 A standing Heracles, holding the club and lion's skin in his left hand. Pleasing and majestic, notwithstanding the small dimensions. Very fine patina. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 89 A youthful Heracles, with the lion's skin knotted around his shoulder, swinging a club in his right hand, high over his head. Etruscan workmanship, and very elegant. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 90 A youthful Heracles, over whose head and arm the lion's skin is thrown in a shield-like manner. The attitude similar to that of the preceding; the club is wanting. Of Etruscan workmanship, very fine. A beautiful patina. 4 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. h.
- 91 Heracles, in an attitude similar to that of the preceding; the lion's skin over his arm, and a horn-like point projecting from his forehead; less fine; but with a beautiful patina. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 92 Heracles crowned with a wreath, resting his right hand upon the club, while in his left, he appears to have held an apple. 5 in. h.

- 93 HERCULES. . . A standing Hercules, holding the scyphus in his right hand, and the club and lion's skin in the other. Very fine patina. 3 in. h.
- 94 The lion's skin of a bronze statue of Hercules. Very fine. An excellent green patina.

PRIESTS AND PRIESTESSES.

- 95 A young priest, or one of the Lares, sacrificing ; in his right hand he holds a rhyton, in the form of a dolphin ; in the other, a cornucopia. The lower part of the body is wanting. $2\frac{5}{8}$ in. h.
- 96 Statuette of a priest, clad in a garment that folds round him. In the oldest Etruscan style. Smooth patina. $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 97 Statue of a Roman priestess, clad in an amply-folded double stola, which is drawn over the head ; the feet encased in shoes. The attitude is grave and dignified, and the drapery most artistic. $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 98 A priestess, clad in the stola prætexta, which is drawn over the hind part of the head ; the feet encased in shoes. Etruscan workmanship. Fine patina. 5 in. h.
- 99 Statue of a Roman sacrificer, or Lar, known under the name of Camillus ; he is clad in a tunic and calceis, and his head is wreathed with laurels ; with his left hand he holds up a drinking horn, in the form of a horsefoot ; in the other, he carries a drinking cup. Very pleasing and elegant. $2\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 100 A representation similar to the preceding one, but not so fine : the hands are wanting. $2\frac{5}{8}$ in. h.
- 101 A female votive-head, with a stephane, and features like Juno ; the pupils of the eyes, which are now broken out, were probably composed of precious stones. The two votive arms, a right, and a left one, found at the same place as this head, must unquestionably have belonged to it. The head and arms, both evidently by the same artist, are beautifully proportioned, and finely executed in all their parts, but more particularly about the hands. The patina particularly fine and smooth. Height of the head, $11\frac{1}{2}$ in. ; length of the arms, 15 in.

WARRIORS, ATHLETES, HISTRIONS.

- 102 An elderly warrior, with the bulla, and wearing a sagum round his shoulders, and a great helmet, covered with a waving horsetail upon his head. His arm is thrown around a younger warrior, at his side, whose head is encircled by a fillet. A masterly composition, of the Etruscan period. (Vide Tab. IV. No. 1.) $3\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 103 A warrior throwing the lance ; his breast-plate is ornamented, and on his head he wears a helmet, which partly covers his face. He stands upon the original pedestal. The lance and the left hand are wanting. Etruscan workmanship : fine patina. $3\frac{1}{8}$ in. h.
- 104 A warrior on horseback, with a double coat of mail, and upon his head a helmet, whose visor descends deep over the face. The rider formerly carried a lance, which, however, is now wanting. The horse is in motion. Etruscan. $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 105 A warrior in a short shirt of mail, with a winged helmet and a disproportionately large plume upon his head. The body is quite flat, the arms stiff and imperfect ; but the face and the armour-covered legs are more finished. Etruscan. 11 in. h.

- 106 A gladiator in a fencing attitude ; on his stretched-forth right arm he wears a small shield, intended to break the adversary's stroke. Of a later Roman period. 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 107 A youthful athlete, with the strigil, preparing for the combat. In the severe Etruscan style. A very fine smooth patina. 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 108 A bearded athlete, with his hands placed upon his hip, as if he were carrying a burthen. Very fine and artistic. 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 109 An athlete swinging in his uplifted right hand a ball, which he is about to throw. Fine Etruscan workmanship : the patina good. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 110 A youthful athlete of sturdy frame, in a bold challenging attitude ; the left hand, which appears to have held some weapon, now wanting, is stretched forth. A characteristic Etruscan representation. An enamel-like, greenish-blue patina. The figure stands upon its original square bronze pedestal. 8 in. h.
- 111 A Discobolus, with the discus in his right hand. Characteristically treated. Etruscan workmanship. The feet are wanting : a fine patina. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 112 A youthful actor, clad in an ample cloak, holding the tragic mask. Very pleasing. 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 113 A man, standing, with a helmet, in the very oldest Etruscan style. 3 in. h.

PORTRAIT STATUES.

- 114 Bust of an emperor, probably Tiberius, with a handle upon the head. Perhaps it served as a weight. The martial cloak of Oriental alabaster, attached by an onyx is of more modern date. The stones, which formed the pupils of the eye are broken out. Very grand and spirited. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 115 Statue of young Caracalla, in the Roman imperial garb. Highly artistic. 6 in. h.
- 116 Statue of Septimius Severus, crowned with laurel, and in the dress of a Roman emperor, yet with a totally unornamented double coat of mail. In his left hand he holds the sceptre, while the other is imperiously stretched forth. Spirited : the patina of a fine green. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 117 Cleopatra, naked, with the viper, whose poisoned tooth has already inflicted the deadly wound in her left hand ; in her uplifted right hand she holds another serpent, which coils itself around her arm. 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.

STATUES OF CHILDREN, YOUTHS AND MEN, WITHOUT ANY PARTICULAR DESIGNATION.

- 118 A boy running ; his right leg is considerably elevated behind the other. Very elegant. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 119 A boy advancing with hurried motion ; his left hand is raised, and in the other, he appears to have held a thyrsus. Most spiritedly conceived, and delicately executed. Gilt. 2 in. h.
- 120 A sitting child. Very pretty. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 121 Bust of a child. Fine and spirited. 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 122 Statue of a youthful hero, with the attributes of Hercules, the lion's skin over his head, and the bulla round his neck. One might be led to suppose that this figure represents a young Hercules, were it not that the features differ widely from the accepted type. The lower right arm, and the club in the left hand, are wanting : the feet are restored. Very spirited. 7 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.

- 123 A youth, naked, with a modius-like head-dress; from under which, behind, a luxuriant growth of hair is escaping. In his right hand he holds a patera, and seems about to make a sacrificial offering. Etruscan. 5 $\frac{1}{8}$ in. h.
- 124 A youth looking upwards. In his right hand he holds a serpent, which is coiling round his leg. Unusually fine. 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 125 A male figure, in a recumbent posture, with the lower body clad in a tight garment, and the left arm leaning upon a cushion. The left hand holds some wedge-like object, while the other rests upon the knee. Old Etruscan workmanship. 2 $\frac{1}{8}$ in. h.
- 126 A youthful male figure, in the severe old Etruscan style: the shoulders broad; the arms suspended against the body; the attitude erect and stiff. The figure stands upon its original round pedestal. A fine, smooth, turquoise blue patina. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 127 A silver statuette of a naked male figure, probably holding a patera in one hand, and in the other perhaps a drinking vessel. 1 in. h.
- 128 A mask-like head, with hollow eyes, a fillet round the forehead, and the hair dressed after the Egyptian fashion. It was possibly the knob of a staff. 4 $\frac{3}{8}$ in. h.
- 129 A youthful naked figure, holding in his left hand something like a box. The feet are wanting. 3 in. h.
- 130 A female figure, in the stiff old Etruscan attitude, closely wrapped in a garment, which covers the left shoulder and arm. A work of the oldest Etruscan period. The figure stands upon its original pedestal. 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 131 A grotesque figure, with a pointed cap, playing on a stringed instrument, like our mandoline. In the treatment of this subject the artist has evinced much humour. 3 $\frac{1}{8}$ in. h.
- 132 A youthful figure, with long hair, and a vest-like garment, shading the eyes with the left hand, while with the other hand it appears to be groping about, as the forward-inclined posture of the body likewise seems to indicate. The supposition that this figure represents a boy playing at blind-man's-buff, a children's game, known to antiquity, is not unfounded. The whole representation, which belongs to the Etruscan period, is remarkable for the naïvete which characterizes it. 3 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 133 A male bust, perhaps that of a barbarian, the upper part richly ornamented. The eyes are of garnets. It may have served as a handle. 6 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 134 An unclothed slave, whose features bespeak him to be an Ethiopian, kneeling on the ground in the act of rubbing a shoe, which he holds in his left hand, with a sponge. On a base-picture, published by M. de Witte, is depicted a female slave pursuing the same occupation. The slave wears a helmet-like cap, running into a point. The composition is extremely artistic, and testifies with how much care even trivial subjects are treated by the true artist. Fine patina. (Vide Tab. III. No. 3.) 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.

FRAGMENTS OF STATUES.

- 135 The foot and toe of a large statue, finely executed and patinated, and two small votive feet.
- 136 The finger of a large statue, and an arm of a large statue, perhaps that of Hygeia, round which a serpent is coiled. Both pieces are of exquisite workmanship.

ANIMALS.

- 137 A roaring lion, with bristling mane. The tail is wanting. Bold and characteristic. $2\frac{1}{4}$ in h. $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. l.
- 138 Spirited conception of a panther, with the forepaw raised from the ground. The feet are partly completed in wax. 1 in. h.
- 139 A panther reposing. $\frac{7}{8}$ in. h.
- 140 A crouched and roaring female panther, with the forepaw upraised. Very fine. $1\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 141 A panther, with its tail spread out, preparing to spring. 1 in. h.
- 142 Group of a roaring panther, with upraised paw, and a dog ; both crouched. Panther, 2 in. h. ; dog, $1\frac{3}{8}$ in. h.
- 143 Hippopotamus. $\frac{7}{8}$ in. h.
- 144 A highly characteristic wolf's head, and the equally skilful head of a sea-horse.
- 145 A boar. $1\frac{3}{8}$ in. h.
- 146 A boar feeding. $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 147 The head, neck, and forefoot of a boar ; it served as the foot of a candelabra. Very spirited. $2\frac{1}{8}$ in. h.
- 148 A couching horse. $1\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 149 A finely-executed bull. $1\frac{3}{8}$ in. h.
- 150 A bull, with upraised forefoot. Very characteristic. 3 in. h.
- 151 Ditto. Remarkably artistic. 4 in. h.
- 152 A bull : older and less perfect. $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 153 A bull's head. $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. h., 6 in. l.
- 154 A ram. $1\frac{1}{8}$ in. h.
- 155 A ram, upon each side of whose back a wine-pipe is attached by means of a strap. Characteristic and unique. $1\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 156 A he-goat. $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 156* Ditto. 1 in. h.
- 157 A couched barking-dog. $1\frac{1}{8}$ in. h.
- 158 A barking dog. $1\frac{1}{8}$ in. h.
- 159 A dog. $2\frac{1}{8}$ in. h.
- 160 A squirrel. $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 160* Ditto. $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 161 An eagle, with spread wings and open beak. $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. h., 7 in. w.
- 162 A cock. $1\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 163 A duck. $1\frac{1}{8}$ in. h.
- 163* Ditto. $\frac{7}{8}$ in. h.
- 164 A beetle. 1 in. l.

VESSELS.—KITCHEN UTENSILS.

- 165 A very elegantly formed vase, without a handle; the lower part is ribbed, the neck is covered with Bacchanalian attributes; between two couched panthers is a vase, from which rises a thyrsus, wreathed with vine branches, at which birds are flying on both sides. At the back of this an owl is perceived on the point of a vine-tree, towards which four different birds are flying; there are likewise two vases of flowers of different sorts, surrounded by birds. The subject may explain the purpose of this vessel. 5 in. h.
- 166 Fragment of a vase, with rural representations.
- 167 A flat vessel like a vase, without a foot; it is furnished with two beautifully carved handles. 2½ in. h., 4½ in. w.
- 168 A patera, with a projecting centre-point like a ball. 7¾ in. w.
- 169 A patera, the handle of which is richly ornamented with raised work. 5¼ in. w.
- 170 A vessel of bronze like a cup, plated with silver on the exterior and interior. This is a proof that the ancients were acquainted with the art of covering bronze with a thin coat of silver, now known as plating. 2 in. h., 3½ in. w.
- 171 A round cylix, with a foot. 1⅝ in. h., 4 in. w.
- 172 Two small œnochoes. 1⅝ in. h.
- 173 A small vessel for containing fluids, with a handle and an inclined neck. 3½ in. h.
- 174 A goblet-like drinking vessel, with a fine smooth patina. 5½ in. h.
- 175 A hydria, of an elegant form, with a fine light green patina. The upper handle is covered with Bacchanalian attributes; on the lower part is a Cupid. 6 in. h.
- 176 A hydria of pleasing form; the upper part of the handle is ornamented with a Satyr's head, the lower part with a Silenus-mask. 5⅝ in. h.
- 177 A hydria, terminating in an oval foot, in order to rest upon a peculiar open base, made for the purpose. The handle, which terminates in two serpents at the upper rim of the vessel, is ornamented by the mask of a lion in the centre. 8½ in. h.
- 178 A most elegantly formed hydria, with the mouth slanting upwards, and the rim inlaid with silver. The handle, which is inlaid with silver, and runs along the upper rim of the vessel in two serpents, is ornamented above with a reposing lion, and beneath, with a mask. This vase has a malachite-like patina. 8¾ in. h.
- 179 A hydria, with a somewhat broad spout, and of an elegant form. 6¾ in. h.
- 180 A finely-formed pot with a handle. 2 in. h.
- 181 A pot-like vessel, with a handle, the lower end of which is decorated with a mask. 6½ in. h.
- 182 A pail-like vessel, with double moveable handles, which terminate in serpents' heads. An elegant engraved decoration, an inch wide, runs along the bottom of the vessel. 4⅜ in. h., 7½ in. w.
- 183 A bottle-like vessel, with a stopper. 4½ in. h.
- 184 A very neatly made silver vessel, in the form of a dove. The opening, for the reception of the fluid, is at the hind part, whence the handle curves to the head. From Pompeii. 2½ in. h., 3¾ in. w.
- 185 A round, flat box, with cover and handle. ⅝ in. h., 3¼ in. dr.

- 186 A little box like a bulla, with a hinge to the cover, upon which is an ingeniously worked tortoise.
Perhaps it was intended to contain poison.
- 187 A trowel. Length, inclusive of the stem, 12 in.
- 188 A metal sieve, with a handle. Length, inclusive of the stem, 10½ in.
- 189 A deep metal sieve, with a handle. Fine patina. Length, inclusive of the stem, 12 in.

ORNAMENTS OF VESSELS, HANDLES, &c.

- 190 A similarly formed handle, upon the lower part of which is a representation of Mithras in relief. 7½ in. l.
- 191 A similarly formed handle, upon the broad part of which is represented Philoctetes nursing his wounded leg in his left hand, while his right hand leans upon a staff. In relief. 7½ in. l.
- 192 Handle of a vessel, the upper part of which is formed by a swan's head, and the lower by the mask of a panther; near the lower part is a ring. 7½ in. l.
- 193 The handle of a vessel, at the lower end of which is an antique representation of a head of Medusa. 7¼ in. l.
- 194 A handle, the centre of which is ornamented with a female head: the use not known. 2 in. h.
- 195 A pair of handles, in the form of two backward-bent figures, in the old Etruscan style. Most spirited. 3½ in. l.
- 196 A single handle, quite similar to the last. 3¼ in. l.
- 197 A handle, with a winged Medusa-head in relief. 3¼ in. l.
- 198 A pair of curiously formed handles in the old Etruscan style. They are ribbed at the ends, formed by out-spread hands. Very fine patina. 8½ in. l.
- 199 A handle, with an antique head of Medusa. 3½ in. l.
- 200 A handle, with a relief:—a tiger tearing an antelope. 4½ in. l.
- 201 A pair of handles of a bronze-vessel, with fantastic animals' heads. Excavated at Vulci. 4½ in. h.
- 202 A pair of handles; the ends are oval, and bear representations of Sileus masks. Very spirited. Excavated at Vulci. 6 in. h.
- 203 The handle of a vessel; the upper part consists of a ram's head, and the lower one bears a representation of a prostrate, dying warrior, at whose feet is a hammer, or battle-axe. 8½ in. l.
- 204 A pair of handles, belonging to a bronze vessel, ornamented with small palms and ram's heads. Fine patina. 5½ in. h.
- 205 The handle of a bronze vessel, the lower part ornamented with an elegant little palm. Very fine patina. 4 in. l.
- 206 The handle of a vessel, ornamented with bas-reliefs, consisting of Bacchanalian attributes. 5½ in. l.
- 207 Fragment of the lower part of a handle, with a Bacchanalian mask in relief. 3 in. l.
- 208 Ditto, but somewhat smaller. 2 in. l.
- 209 A moveable handle; the part resting immediately upon the vessel, bears two panther heads. 5¼ in. l.
- 210 A pair of handles, belonging to a large bronze vessel, a part of which is still attached to one of them; they are elegantly ribbed, the upper part branches out into two horses, whose bodies are joined; the lower part ends in small palms, above which are two pegasi. The workmanship is exquisite, the composition original, and the patina very fine. Excavated at Camino. 9½ in. l.

- 211 The handle of a vessel; the upper rim is formed by two lions, while the proper handle consists of a male figure, bent backwards, the legs resting upon a globe, introduced between two Sirens. Underneath is a small palmette. Very fine. 8 in. h.
- 212 An elegantly formed vase-handle; the upper part consists of two couchant lions, united by a lion's head; the under part branches forth into serpents, between which is a small palmette.
- 213 The handle of a vessel; two figures engaged in gymnastic exercises. The execution equally masterly as that of the preceding one. 3 in. h.
- 214 The handle of the cover of a cista; two athletes wrestling; their heads are butting each other, and the hands of each are clasped around the other's arms. This representation is in the highest style of art; the form and contour of the limbs evince the utmost anatomical knowledge. The patina very fine, and very well preserved. 7 in. w., $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 215 The handle of a cista; two heroes, in the dress of Etruscan warriors, standing upon two small palms, and holding each other by the hair, while they swing their short daggers at each. The attitude of the two combatants, which is perfectly the same for both, forms the handle. The workmanship on both sides is carefully executed, and evinces much imagination. Very fine patina. $10\frac{3}{4}$ in. w., $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 216 The handle of a patera; the upper end is ornamented with three female heads, the lower one terminating in a horse's head. The whole workmanship is most skilful. Etruscan. $5\frac{3}{4}$ in. l.
- 217 The handle of a patera, representing a male figure, bearing small palms, standing with closed feet upon a ram's head. Etruscan workmanship. $9\frac{1}{2}$ in. l.
- 218 The handle of a patera, somewhat similar to the last, only that the figure bears two rams upon its head and hands. Fine patina. $9\frac{1}{2}$ in. l.
- 219 A handle, in the form of a tiger. $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. l.
- 220 A handle, with dolphins in relief. $1\frac{3}{4}$ in. w.
- 221 A handle, in the form of a female bust. $3\frac{5}{8}$ in. h.
- 222 Three vessel ornaments; a swan's head, a mask of Silenus, and a wreathed bull's head; all three finely executed.
- 223 The ornament of a vase: a horse-breaker, holding a restive steed by the reins. $1\frac{7}{8}$ in. h.
- 224 Two ornaments of a vessel, a right, and a left one, which both represent the same subject—namely, Bellerophon kneeling by the Pegasus, whose hind legs are in this instance winged, and watering the divine horse, from out of the water-vessel. Etruscan workmanship; very spirited, and extremely rare. $1\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 225 The two Dioscuri, their arms interlaced, their steps bent leftwards; in the severe old Etruscan style. This served to ornament a candelabra. Very fine turquoise blue patina. $3\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 226 Three animals' heads (parts of vessels), a ram's head, a bull's head, and a very finely executed swan's head.
- 227 Charon in his boat, probably intended to ornament some vessel. Bas-relief. $1\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 228 The upper body of a Cupid, with a garment thrown over his left shoulder, holding in his left hand a patera with fruit, which he is touching with his other. Etruscan: very fine patina. It may have been a vase-ornament. $1\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 229 Three parts of vessels, in the forms of a hound's head, a lion's claw with a lion's head, and the fore-part of a panther.

- 230 A very expressive and beautifully executed mask of Silenus, wreathed with ivy. The ornament of a vessel. 2½ in. h.
- 231 Two masks, finely conceived and executed; ornaments of vessels. 1½ in. h., 1½ in. w.
- 232 A bust of Jupiter: grandly treated; it was probably the ornament of some vessel. 2 in. h.
- 233 A tragic mask—fine: it has a handle, and served to ornament some vessel. 1½ in. h.
- 234 A highly characteristic mask of Silenus, wreathed with ivy. The ornament of a vessel. 1½ in. h.
- 235 A Pan's mask, with a very long beard. The ornament of a vessel. 3½ in. h.
- 236 A round plate with rich ornaments, formerly set with stones; probably used as cover. 2¼ in. dr.
- 237 Cupid seated in a bold attitude upon a sea-horse. Most beautiful, and worthy of notice, both on account of the attitude of Cupid, and of the skilful execution of the sea-horse. This bas-relief ornaments a plate, which was probably intended to adorn some vessel. 1½ in. h., 2¾ in. l.
- 238 A rosette, most elegantly shaped, formerly gilt and enamelled with blue and white; it is still pretty well preserved. 2½ in. dr.
- 239 Hercules and Apollo contesting for the tripod: in the severest Etruscan style; it served as a candelabra ornament. 2½ in. h.
- 240 Three animals' heads—a dog's, and two lion's heads, with open jaws; probably used as a mouth-piece for fountains.
- 241 Twenty-seven various bronze ornaments.
- 242 A candelabrum, resting upon three lion's claws, between which small palmettes are introduced; the stem is ribbed, and surmounted by an ornamentally engraved plate, wherefrom four lily-like branches project, by which the lamps were suspended. In the centre of these branches, is a statuette of Hercules, with the lion's skin over his head and shoulders, in the old Etruscan style. Fine patina. 48 in. h.
- 243 A candelabrum, resting upon three lion's claws, and provided with four lily-like branches, by which to suspend the lamps. 43 in. h.
- 244 A very elegantly executed candelabrum, resting upon three griffin's claws, with a spiral-like, twisted shaft, and surmounted by a hemispherical cup, in which rests a lamp, with a handle. The patina peculiarly fine: Etruscan. Inclusive of the lamp, 21 in. h.
- 245 A candelabrum, resting upon three horse's feet; at the foot of the stem, sits a dove, pursued by two panthers; it is surmounted by a finely ornamented round plate, for the reception of a lamp. 36 in. h.
- 246 A candelabrum, resting upon three deer's feet, with a spirally-wound stem, up which a panther is climbing; on the summit is a hemispherical cup for the reception of a lamp. 15½ in. h.
- 247 A candelabrum, resting upon three deer's feet; on the stem sits a dove, pursued by a fox; in the corners of the square, circularly hollowed plate for the lamp, are four doves. 10¾ in. h.
- 248 A candelabrum, resting upon three human legs, on the spirally-wound stem of which sits a cock, pursued by a panther. It is surmounted by a hollow square plate, for the reception of the lamp. 16½ in. h.
- 249 A tripod, formed by three lion's claws, similar to the foot of a candelabrum.
- 250 Two feet of a candelabrum, in the form of winged lion's claws, ornamented with Silenus' head. Etruscan. 2 in. h.
- 251 Three ornaments from a candelabrum, in the form of a horse's head, and two Satyr's heads. 1½ in. h.
- 252 Head of a bull, with a human face. Very skilful workmanship. Ornament of a candelabrum. ¾ in. h.

LAMPS.

- 253 A lamp, in the form of a she-panther, roaring, with her teats hanging down. The neck of the lamp projects from the breast ; upon the back is the opening for the reception of oil. A chain for the suspension of the lamp goes from the neck to the tail of the animal. $9\frac{1}{2}$ in. l., $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 254 A lamp, on the handle of which is a mask, with a rich growth of hair. Very fine workmanship. Formerly in the possession of the Empress Josephine. 9 in. l.
- 255 A votive lamp in the form of a sandaled foot. 4 in. l.
- 256 A round lamp, the handle of which is in the form of the head and neck of a pelican.
- 257 A lamp, the handle of which is in the form of the head and neck of a swan. $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. l.
- 258 Ditto. 4 in. l.
- 259 A lamp, the handle of which is in the form of a lion's head. $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. l.
- 260 A phantastically composed lamp : the handle consists of the fore-part of a horse, and ends by winding round and round in an upward direction ; upon it are perched two birds, one over the other. $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. h., 5 in. l.
- 261 An elegant little lamp, with a cover, upon which a phallus is represented. $1\frac{1}{2}$ in. l.
- 262 A lamp, intended to be suspended from a candelabrum. 3 in. l.
- 263 An elegant lamp, intended for a candelabrum : the handle is in the form of a half-moon. $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. l.

KEYS.—LOCKS.

- 264 A large key, with three wards ; of very complicated mechanism, and fine workmanship. Found in the neighbourhood of Lyons. $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. l.
- 265 A key, with a fine handle, ornamented with pierced work. $4\frac{1}{8}$ in. l.
- 266 A key, of an elegant shape, and of complicated mechanism. Fine patina. $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. l.
- 267 A similar key. 4 in. l.
- 268 A key, of a complicated shape, with a bent, comb-like bit. 4 in. l.
- 269 A very fine key, with two wards ; the handle terminates in an animal's head : the workmanship and patina very fine. $4\frac{3}{4}$ in. l.
- 270 A simple key, the handle of which forms a Bacchanalian Hermes.
- 271 Twenty-one variously formed keys, of different sizes.
- 272 Six ring keys : three with complicated wards, and three with simple ones.
- 273 Fragments of a lock and padlock.
- 274 Two large door-hinges, and a smaller one, similar to those in use at the present time.
- 275 An instrument, perhaps a fastening for a door, with two hooks and eyes ; on it are two recumbent figures, holding a winged Medusa head. Very fine.

TONGS, SURGICAL INSTRUMENTS, COMPASSES, STRIGILS, SICKLES, KNIVES, BELLS.

- 276 An elegantly executed pair of tongs, with square lips : the arms fit closely together. 4 in. l.
- 277 An elegant pair of tongs, the arms of which are ornamented at one end with female heads, and at the other with lion's heads, also with dogs and doves. $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. l.

- 278 An ear-spoon (volSELLA), joined by a hinge, a tooth-pick, and two other instruments.
- 279 Fourteen different surgical instruments, in part, of very elegant workmanship. Among them are dental instruments, sounding instruments, tongs, &c.
- 280 Nine spoons of different sizes : in part destined for medical purposes.
- 281 A compass.
- 282 A well-preserved, finely formed strigil.
- 283 A scythe.
- 284 A knife handle ; the figure of an ape, in the dress of Telesphorus. 2½ in. h.
- 285 A knife handle, in the form of a wild boar. Very characteristic.
- 286 A punchcon-like instrument, the handle of which forms a couched lion. 7 in. l.
- 287 A star-like sacrificial instrument, with crookedly-bent teeth and a hollow handle. 13½ in. l.
- 288 A bent sacrificial knife, with a finely worked bronze handle. Completely preserved. 9 in. l.
- 289 A bent sacrificial knife ; the haft of the handle, which was probably of ivory, is wanting ;—also a similar blade. 8½ in. l.
- 290 A hand-bell, upon the skilfully worked handle of which, stands a phantastically formed bull. 6 in. h.
- 291 A bell of pyramidal form. 2½ in. h.

STEEL-YARDS.—WEIGHTS.

- 292 A steel-yard, with four hooks. The weight is in the form of a finely executed, ivy-wreathed bust of Mercury, with the winged hat. Found at Simier, near Nice.
- 293 A small steel-yard, with a hook. 6 in. l.
- 294 A female head, provided with a hook, on the top, which probably served as a weight. Another mask-like head on a ring : use unknown.
- 295 A female head, with a handle on the top, to serve as a weight : the eyes were probably of silver. A very fine, smooth patina. 2¼ in. h.
- 296 A very gracefully formed head of Cupid, with a frontlet : upon the head is a handle. The head served as a weight. 3¼ in. h.
- 297 A remarkably finely modelled female head, of the most beautiful Greek type, with flowing hair, which is encircled by a broad diadem. The ears are adorned with ornaments ; and the neck with a twisted chain. Upon the centre of the head, which is hollow, is a moveable flap attached to a hinge, that constitutes part of the head-dress, and closes a round aperture. At the side of this aperture are two handles, to which was probably attached a suspension chain. A very rare, turquoise-like patina. From Vulci. 4¼ in. h.
- 298 Bust of a Bacchante, the rich hair wreathed with ivy, and a panther's skin over the left shoulder. Upon the head are an aperture and a handle, as in the preceding instance. 4¼ in. h.
- 299 A remarkably fine female head ; the tresses of hair are bound by a diadem ; the ears, adorned with round appendages ; around the neck is a twisted chain, strung with phalli. Upon the angular-lined head is a round aperture ; and upon the diadem are two wing-like handles for a suspension chain. Fine patina. 3¾ in. h.
- 300 A very finely modelled female head, with a tress-like diadem encircling the forehead ; the head is hollow, and its back part forms an oblong-square aperture along the neck, formerly covered by a slide. 1¾ in. h.

AMULETS, CHAINS, RINGS.

- 301 A large bronze armlet, coiled like a serpent, with a very fine green patina. 4 in. dr.
 302 Two armlets of a similar form. $3\frac{1}{3}$ in. dr.
 303 A hollow, chased armlet ; and another of wire.
 304 A thick and a thin armlet ; the latter somewhat broken.
 305 Two spirally-wound armlets.
 306 Ditto.
 307 A pair of very skilfully worked women's bracelets, attached together.
 308 Two children's armlets.
 309 Two silver armlets ; found together with the silver fibula (318) at Ely in Cambridgeshire.
 310 Two strong bronze rings, each having six button-like ornaments. Their use unknown. $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. w.
 310* Ditto, rather smaller. $5\frac{1}{2}$ in. w.
 311 Part of an armlet, with moveable links. Workmanship in relief.
 312 A bronze wire necklace, from which is suspended a phallus.
 313 A chain, consisting of larger and smaller links, bent together. $38\frac{1}{2}$ in. l.
 314 A silver finger ring, upon which is engraved a dove with a palm-branch. A small silver hand with an armlet ; the fingers in the same position as those of the small coral hands worn in Italy at the present day, as talismans against the Evil Eye.
 315 Two silver, very finely worked finger-rings, the one ornamented with ram's horns, the other with an interlaced silver wire.
 316 Twelve different bronze finger-rings.
 316* Ten ditto.

FIBULÆ, PINS, NAILS.

- 317 An unusually large fibula, in the form of a half-crescent. Prettily engraved and well preserved. 7 in. l.
 318 A very large silver fibula, in open work. Found at Ely, Cambridgeshire. $6\frac{1}{2}$ in. l.
 319 A very beautifully ornamented and gilt fibula, in the form of a cross-bow. 3 in. l.
 320 A beautiful fibula, in the form of a harp, in open work. $5\frac{1}{4}$ in. l.
 321 A very fine, elegantly executed silver fibula, the pin of which is wanting.
 322 Two large bronze fibulæ.
 323 A fibula, in the form of a horse, a wreath-like one, one like a sandal, and a very elegantly worked silver one, with a swan's head. All without pins.
 324 A silver and two bronze fibulæ.
 325 Two bronze fibulæ of a very fine patina.
 326 A fibula and a hook, probably used as a garment-fastening.
 327 A fibula, in the form of a bird, with outspread wings, and two other skilfully worked fibulæ.
 328 A large fibula, and different pins.
 329 Three bronze fibulæ.

- 355 A spirally-wound snaffle ; with a beautiful patina.
- 356 A horse's bit.
- 357 A horse-trapping, composed of four connected spires.
- 358 A large, strong spire, used as a horse-trapping.
- 359 Four smaller spires, for the same purpose.
- 360 A bell, used as a horse-trapping.
- 361 A most beautifully-executed ram's head, probably intended to ornament the point of a carriage-pole.
Characteristically conceived. 2 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. l.
- 362 A very beautifully-formed chain, like a chin-chain. Very well preserved. Found at Mayence.
23 in. l.
- 363 Three stirrups and two buckles, belonging to a horse-accoutrement.
- 364 Seventeen small buckles, belonging to a horse-accoutrement.
- 365 Eight similarly-formed, in part richly-ornamented chain-links, used as horse-trappings.
- 366 A spur, part of a chain, and a bronze ornament.
- 367 Twenty various bronze ornaments, belonging to the accoutrement of a horse.

METAL MIRRORS.

- 368 A metal mirror, discovered in a grave at Chiusi, in the year 1826, and published by Micali (Monum. p. servire alla Storia d. ant. popoli, T. XLVI. 1.), with the words : "Castor e Pollux amorevolmente abbracciati da un' altra figura d'ignoto nome." Gerhard (Etruscan Mirrors, I. 56. I.) recognizes in these figures Cabiric deities, in the presence of Minerva, and Venus with the Cista mystica. According to the Etruscan inscriptions engraved above the different figures, the following is the subject of the composition upon this mirror : Chalucasa, "the brazen," (Talos) beardless, leans upon Kasutru (Castor), whom he encircles with his left arm, and upon Palututru (Pollux), around whom his right arm is entwined. He advances towards Minerva, who, helmeted, and armed with the lance, is glancing at Venus (Turan) ; the latter stands at the right extremity of the scene, in a stooping attitude, and has just opened a little box, probably to take medicaments from it. From the explanation of Panofka (Archæolog. Zeitung. Jahrg. IV. S. 317), it would appear, doubtless, that it is a representation of the death of Talos, for the Etruscan name Chalucasa, as a surname of Talos, signifies "Chalcas," miner ; and his embracing the two Dioscuri, recalls his manner of receiving strangers. This mirror indisputably belongs to the most interesting compositions of this kind.
- 369 A fragmented metal mirror, on the inner side of which is engraved a naked female figure, with a pomegranate blossom in her hand ; perhaps Venus. 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. dr.
- 370 A metal mirror, with small palms engraved on the reverse. 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. dr.
- 371 A metal mirror, without a handle, with engraved ornaments at the back. 9 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. dr.
- 372 A metal mirror, unornamented. 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. dr.

GOLD ORNAMENTS.

- 1 A necklace, consisting of links in the form of wheat grains; at both ends are pendants, with convex garnets; in the middle is a rosette, to which a finely-formed female head is attached. Etruscan workmanship.
- 2 A very delicately-worked fibula, at the point of which are two sphinxes.
- 3 A very delicately-worked fibula, on which are Cupid with the patera and syrinx in his hands, a duck, and a sphynx; the ground on which they stand is ornamented with flowers. Etruscan workmanship.
- 4 A pair of extremely fine ear-rings, of Greek workmanship, which represent Ganymedes being carried away by the eagle. These ear-rings indisputably belong to the finest remains of Grecian ornamental workmanship.
- 5 A pair of very finely-worked filagree ear-rings, of Etruscan origin.
- 6 Another pair, ditto.
- 7 An exquisitely-worked filagree ear-ring, with two couched and winged sphinx. Etruscan workmanship.
- 8 A very finely-worked filagree ear-ring, with a little human head.

- 26 An ear-ring, with a plasma pendant; and the upper part of an ear-ring, with a sapphire.
- 27 The pendant of an ear-ring composed of several stones. Very fine workmanship.
- 28 A necklace, consisting of thirteen emeralds joined by little golden links.

- 29 A small gold figure, with a hook at the back, by which to suspend it, representing a Lictor with the fascia.
- 30 A massive gold ring, on which lies a Silenus-mask. Greek workmanship.
- 31 A massive gold ring, with a rough diamond, in the form of an octahedron, set in such a manner that the planes of the crystal are visible on all sides. Unique.
- 32 A massive gold ring, on which the head of Ariadne is engraved. Very fine Greek workmanship.
- 33 A massive gold ring, on which a pigeon is engraved. Etruscan workmanship.
- 34 A massive gold ring, on the shield of which a man with a bough, pursued by a goose, is represented.
- 35 A massive gold ring, on the shield of which is a phallus.
- 36 A massive gold ring, on the plate of which are represented two sphinxes, seated opposite each other; the one has a woman's head, the other a lion's; there is some very fine filagree work round the edge. Etruscan workmanship.
- 37 A little ring, with an emerald, cut en cabochon.
- 38 A ring, with a shield, on which is a raven with cherries in its bill; a fragment of another ring, with a bee upon the plate.
- 39 A ring, on the shield of which is a lion springing.
- 40 A ring with a shield, on which are three compartments; in the middle one a lion, the two others are indistinct.
- 41 A ring, of very beautiful workmanship, a scarabæus of brown sard, on which a sphinx is engraved, is overspun with a network of filagree.
- 42 A grotesque figure, with folded arms.
- 43 A round gold plate, with a hook, adorned with ring-shaped ornaments; and a smaller one, on which are two fish.
- 44 A blue paste set in gold, representing Ceres. Very fine.
- 45 A couched ram and a lion mask.
- 46 A gold plate, chased, to which a sapphire and an emerald are attached. A small gold ring. Three small and hollow gold balls.
- 47 Nine wooden hair-pins with gilt points.

I V O R Y.

- 1 Splendid ivory head of the youthful Bacchus. The artist has expressed in the features, a certain joyousness and roguishness, which are in perfect keeping with the god's character. The treatment of the hair is exquisite. This head probably served as a box, as the opening at the back of the head, and the groove for a lid, indicate. Etruscan workmanship. (Vid. Tab. VI. No. 3.) 2 in. h.
- 2 A couching lion, with open jaws, in which the teeth and tongue are finely worked; enamelled eyes, and a smooth, close mane. Very spirited execution. Etruscan workmanship. (Vid. Tab. VI. No. 4.) 4½ in. l.
- 3 Head of a tiger, which probably served as an ornament. This head is executed in an extremely natural and characteristic manner, and indisputably belongs to the finest antique works in ivory, which have descended to us. (Vid. Tab. VI. No. 1.) 2½ in. l.
- 4 A hollow handle, with figures in relief, now broken in two; on one piece is Mercury standing, with large wings on his shoulders, the petasus on his head, and the caduceus in his hand. On the other is a naked Ephebus, with a herpe in his hand: perhaps Perseus. Very old Etruscan workmanship. 5¼ in. l.

- 5 The handle of a knife ; formed like a Hermes, with the bust of Pan. 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. l.
- 6 The trunk of a tree, to which a human skeleton is bound. An extremely rare and interesting composition. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. l.
- 7 A hemi-spherical ivory handle ; on the front of which is Bacchus with the thyrsus in his left hand ; and a bunch of grapes in his right, which a panther is endeavouring to reach : on the right shoulder of the god is seated Cupid. On the back of the handle stands a Satyr, with an amphora on his arm. 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. l.
- 8 A round box with a lid ; on the cover are a female portrait in bas-relief, and two Cupids ; between the latter is an object like a fox-trap, at which one of the Cupids appears to be striking with a club. Etruscan workmanship. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 9 A similar box, but without the cover : on the curve is Hymen upon a couch ; in front of him is a torch ; behind him, a kneeling Cupid holding a wreath. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ in. h.
- 10 A handle ; the upper part of which forms a horse's head. Extremely characteristic.
- 11 Statuette of Harpocrates ; the lower portion of the figure is wanting. Very spirited. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 12 An amber ring ornamented with two figures.
- 13 Statue of Ceres, with a wheat-sheaf beside her. This little statuette, of which the most minute details are neatly executed, indisputably belongs to the most finished of antique works in ivory, and is particularly worthy of admiration on account of the masterly treatment of the garments. (Vid. Tab. VI. No. 2.) 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. h.
- 14 A round and hollow handle, ornamented with four heads of the Medusa, with their tongues hanging out. In the antique style. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. h.
- 15 Fragment of a square ivory plate, which formed one side of a box, with a representation in relief of a lion mangling a goat. Etruscan workmanship. 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. l.
- 16 A similar plate, with a fragmented representation of animals fighting. Another fragment, representing two jesting Satyrs. Fragment of a handle, with palmette ornament. Etruscan workmanship.
- 17 Four geese. Etruscan workmanship.
- 18 A small and delicately executed portrait—the head of a woman.
- 19 Five buttons, which have become turquoise-coloured.
- 20 Two large dice.
- 21 Four smaller ditto.
- 22 A spoon, neatly worked ; and a head-pin, with a female head.
- 23 A style, spirally twisted ; and another one coloured green.
- 24 A spatula and a needle.
- 25 Four hair-pins.
- 26 Ditto ditto.
- 27 A shepherd's pipe, cut out of the tooth of a boar.
- 28 A long tessera, with the inscription, VICTOR.

- 33 A long gladiator's tessera, with the inscriptions, SERVILIVS—CLEMES. SP·K·IAN.—TI·CLAV·CN·PISON.
- 34 A tessera, with the inscriptions, ARTIVS. CAILI.—CIA·DEII.
- 35 The following nine fragments belonged probably to an antique Roman box, and are very interesting:—
- 1 A panther, standing before a vase, above a hand holding a cornucopia, from which fruit (apples and pears) fall. 5 in. h., 2½ in. w.
 - 2 Cupid, fragment; very fine. 5 in. h., 2 in. w.
 - 4 Figure of a youth, with drapery over his arm, leaning on a column. 4¾ in. h., 2¼ in. w.
 - 4 Cupid, in a running position, his head crowned with a wreath, holding a drapery over his head, at his feet two panther's feet, one of them holding in his claws a wreath, above a thyrsus and a cantharos. 5 in. h., 3 in. w.
 - 5 Silenus' head, crowned with vine-leaves. 5 in. h., 2 in. w.
 - 6 Ditto ditto, much damaged. 4 in. h., 2 in. w.
 - 7 Three fluted columns. 5 in. h., 1¼ in. w.

A N T I Q U E M A R B L E S.

- 1 ATHLETE; (pugil). A magnificent statue, in a fighting attitude, standing against a hermes, which represents Hercules with the lion's skin, emblematic of strength and valour. The composition of this figure shows the consummate skill of the artist, and the accuracy of its muscular development displays a perfect knowledge of anatomy. This statue is not only remarkable as an extraordinary specimen of ancient sculpture, but is also very valuable, from the precious material of which it is wrought. It was found in the Villa Negroni, and is fully described in "Monumenti Antichi inediti, by Guatani, Roma, 1788," and also published in Clarac's "Statues Antiques de l'Europe." Nero-antico; 5 ft. 10¼ in. h.

This stone having most likely been the pedestal of an antique statue of Paris, the hero is relating his deeds. The Duke of Buckingham possessed this antique monument, to whom Sir Gore Ouseley gave the following explanation: "Colonel Leake supposes that the lines now on the stone, are the conclusion of a longer inscription; and I confess that I was of the same opinion (until you assured me of the contrary), in consequence of their commencing with the word ΚΑΙ 'and'; however, this conjunction may be used as the word 'also,' which will make sense of it. According to Colonel Leake's reading, the translation would run thus, (supposing Paris speaking): 'I sufficed also to my country, with my slaughtering sword; and I killed Achilles in the vigour of his age. I resisted up to the tenth year of the Greeks; but no one has any power against the thread of the Fates.' Mr. Hamilton considers the word ΥΙΕ, a little puzzling, but as it might be addressing his friend or successor, as well as 'O my Son,' it may answer. The date of the inscription may be the century before our æra."

INDIAN ANTIQUITIES.

- 1 GANESHA. . . . The God of Wisdom, with the elephant's head, seated upon the lotus throne ; his feet are crossed, he has four hands, and upon his head he wears the triple crown. Elegant workmanship. 3 in. h.
- 2 Similar, but less finished. The serpent, which, in the form of a girdle, descends from his shoulder, and winds itself around his body, is thrusting forth its head. 4 in. h.
- 3 Similar, most beautifully executed. Behind the god are the customary throne decorations, composed of pillars, elephants' heads, and the five-headed serpent. 3½ in. h.
- 4 RAMA AND SITA.—Vishnu, in the transformation of Rama, seated upon the lotus, and holding his recovered wife Sita, upon his slightly crossed left knee. 4 in. h.
- 5 SHIVA AND PARVATI.—Mahadeva or Shiva, the great god, the god of destruction, seated, and holding in his four hands the trident, which characterizes him. On his knee sits Parvati, the goddess of nature and beauty, holding a flower in her hand. 11 in. h.
- 6 Shiva, standing, holds in his right hand the wanderer's staff, upon the head of which is the bull Nandi, and in his left the bottle ; to his girdle are attached five human heads ; upon the figure are perceptible the traces of the blue colour, peculiar to this god, from the circumstance of his having swallowed poison. 5¾ in. h.
- 7 A highly elegant standing figure of Mahadeva, with projecting boar's teeth, holding flowers and fruits in his four hands. Finished workmanship. 9½ in. h.
- 8 Mahadeva, seated upon the lion, who serves as a throne, and holding in his arms his wife Parvati. Behind him is the canopy ; two of his attendants stand, one above, and one beside him. Upon the pedestal is an inscription in Devanagiri characters. 7 in. h.
- 9 Shiva, in the form of Kali, seated, holding the trident in his right hand, and the cup in his left. Beside him is a dog. 3 in. h.
- 10 A highly ancient representation of Shiva, with silver eyes. Four standing, and four seated figures, two elephants, and the seven-headed serpent adorn the canopy of his throne, at the back of which is a long Sanscrit inscription. 5½ in. h.
- 11 Parvati, the wife of Shiva, seated, with her feet bound together ; in her right hand holds the wreath, in her left the lamp ; above her head, attached to the throne, as in Egyptian representations, is the uræus serpent. 6¼ in. h.
- 12 VISHNU. . . . Vishnu, standing, with the wanderer's staff and cup in his hands ; the hind hands hold the shell, Tshank, and the cornucopia ; on the ground before him are the sun and moon ; on either side is a small ox. 5½ in. h.
- 13 Vishnu, standing, with the sword, battle-axe, bow, and shield, in his four hands. 7½ in. h.
- 14 A similar representation ; Vishnu rests his shield upon the uræus serpent. 7 in. h.
- 15 A fine characteristic representation of a fish, standing erect—probably Vishnu, in the first Avatara. Excellent workmanship. 6 in. h.
- 16 DURGA. . . . Durga, the wife of Shiva, eight-handed, standing, her right foot placed upon the griffon, with the trident in her right hand, she is piercing the buffalo-spirit

- Mohaishesur, at the moment when he issues from the buffalo; upon the ground before her lies the chopped-off buffalo head; the hind hands hold the ring, the sword, the battle-axe, the bow, the shield, and cup. 5 in. h.
- 17 LAKSHMI. . . Lakshmi, with richly flowing hair. The figure is throughout simple and noble. 6½ in. h.
- 18 Lakshmi, with the winged circle and cornucopia, between two female attendants, who hold a flower. Above her is the thronc-decoration, with the five-headed serpent. 7¼ in. h.
- 19 BUDDHA. . . . A Birmese representation of Buddha, in silver, more gracefully executed than these statuettes usually are. 5 in. h.
- 20 Buddha, sitting upon an elevated pedestal, likewise Birmese. 3½ in. h.
- 21 A Birmese figure of a kneeling priest. 3¾ in. h.
- 22 A chief praying, beneath a group of trees, accompanied by a male and female attendant. 6 in. h.

PERUVIAN POTTERY.

- 1 A black glazed earthen vessel, in shape of a seal (fish); a musical instrument. 5½ in. h.
- 2 A black earthen vessel; very grotesque. 6¾ in. h., 8½ in. l.
- 3 A black earthen vessel; a sitting grotesque figure, with folded hands, up the handle of which an ape is climbing. 9 in. h.
- 4 A black earthen vessel; an animal devouring another; very grotesque. 6½ in. h.
- 5 A black earthen vessel; two united globular vessels with long necks, on one of which sits a pigeon. 6 in. h., 6 in. w.
- 6 A vase-shaped vessel, with two handles and a snake; red clay; the front painted white, with red irregular ornaments, from an ancient Peruvian sepulchre, found by General Paroisien. 7 in. h.

MEXICAN ANTIQUITIES.

- 1 A mask, composed of wood, and inlaid in mosaic with turquoise, the eyes are of mother-of-pearl, and the teeth of ivory; its aspect is very hideous and terror inspiring. 6½ in. h., 6 in. w.
- 2 A sacrificial knife, the handle is formed by a grotesque figure, composed of wood and inlaid in mosaic with turquoise, malachite, and coral; the blade is flint. 12¼ in. l.
- These two objects were used by the priest in the performance of human sacrifices, offered to Tlalloc, the god of the earth and waters.
- 3 A human skull, inlaid in mosaic with turquoise and obsidian; the cavities of the eyes are filled up by two large circular pieces of marquisite, to represent the eyes; the jaws contain nearly all the teeth, and are made moveable; some leather straps are attached to the skull; there is also with it a scalp with the natural hair of the head. 8½ in. h., 8 in. w.
- These three objects may be considered as unique; there is no record in any Catalogue of the great public museums, that such monuments of the ancient Mexican people are in existence.
